As I've been growing in my relationship with God, I'm finding I'm not listening for the whisper as much as I am the echo. Often when God speaks, he will say the same thing through a sermon, a passage of Scripture, a chance conversation, or an unexpected encounter. When we begin looking for these sacred echoes, we are better able to recognize God's voice in our life and walk more confidently in ...

I read Margaret Feinberg's, "the Sacred echo" while attending to my dying mother. I found great comfort in the text as relating to hearing the voice of God even in the midst of grief and sadness. When she penned these words; "...the words of God are life, they bring life, they instill life, they bring back to life.

To rediscover God as my every inhale and tender exhale. In spending more time in prayer, in simply being with God, I'm rediscovering the power of lingering. In The Sacred Echo: Hearing God's Voice in Every Area of Your Life, I described God as one-part asking and one part-waiting and one part-listening.
